(a) the various types of Public Distribution Systems operating in the country at present;

(b) whether Government propose to formulate any scheme to provide ration to urban poor people at cheaper rates than that to the rural poor people;

(c) if so, the details thereof; and

(d) the amount spent on food subsidy during 1994-95 and the amount of additional subsidy required for the same during 1995-96?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF CIVIL SUPPLIES, CONSUMER AFFAIRS AND PUBLIC DISTRIBUTION (DEPTT. OF CONSUMER AFFAIRS AND PUBLIC DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM) (SHRI VENOD SHARMA): (a) to (d) As per present policy of Central Government, there is only one type of Public Distribution System (PDS) in the country. However, in order to improve the functioning of the PDS in backward regions of the country, about 2446 blocks have been covered under the Revamped Public Distribution System (RPDS). In the blocks covered under RPDS, States have been advised to ensure availability of 20 kgs of food grains per household per month. Central Government issues foodgrains meant for distribution in RPDS areas to States/UTs at specially subsidised Central Issue Prices (CIPs) which are Rs. 50/- per quintal lower than the CIPs for the PDS. These specially subsidised CIPs are not applicable to urban agglomerations within the RPDS blocks in non-tribal majority States.

Central Government has no proposal to formulate any scheme for providing ration to urban poor at cheaper rates than arc applicable to rural poor.

The total amount of food subsidy (including sugar) during 1994-95 was Rs. 5100 crores as per Revised Estimates. A budgetary provision of Rs. 5250 crores has been made for food subsidy for the year 1995-96.
